

THE GLAIZE (TR SHELTER)

In 1794, when the zone of contact had reached the eastern Midwest, a single northern Ohio town, "the Glaize," was made up of hundreds of Shawnee, Miami, and Delaware Indians. British and French traders and artisans, along with several Nanticokes, Cherokees, and Iroquois Indians were represented as well. There were even a few African American and white American captives, and foreigners who had married in to or been adopted by Indian families. Come visit this historical Utopia at the TR Shelter, where you will have the opportunity to participate in activities like blacksmithing, tomahawk throwing, archaeological digs, and action archery.
